

Job Title: French Literature Professor

Location: Paris, France

Department: Humanities

Employment Type: Full-Time

Reports to: Head of Department

Job Overview

We are seeking a passionate and experienced French Literature Professor to join our esteemed Humanities Department. The successful candidate will be responsible for teaching undergraduate and graduate courses, guiding students in their literary studies, and contributing to the development of the French Literature program.

Key Responsibilities

- Teach a variety of French Literature courses, covering periods from the Middle Ages to contemporary literature.
- Develop and update course syllabi and instructional materials that reflect current research in the field.
- Mentor and advise students on their academic progress and research projects.
- Conduct original research and publish findings in peer-reviewed journals.
- Participate in departmental meetings and contribute to curriculum development.
- Engage in community outreach and promote the French Literature program through public lectures and events.
- Collaborate with colleagues on interdisciplinary projects and initiatives.

Qualifications

- Ph.D. in French Literature or a closely related field.
- Proven teaching experience at the university level.

- Strong publication record in reputable academic journals.
- Proficiency in both French and English.
- Excellent communication, organizational, and interpersonal skills.
- Ability to inspire and engage students from diverse backgrounds.

Preferred Qualifications

- Expertise in a specific period or genre of French Literature, such as Renaissance literature, Romanticism, or postcolonial studies.
- Experience with digital humanities tools and methods.
- Previous involvement in curriculum development or academic program leadership.

Application Process

Interested candidates should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, teaching statement, research statement, and three letters of recommendation to [email@example.com] by [Application Deadline].

Only shortlisted candidates will be contacted for interviews.